WILL BE UP-TO-DATE.
Coroner James Crowe Will Install a Record Book in His Office.
Coroner James Crowe is about to install in his office one of the most complete records of the bodies of unidentified dead coming within his jurisdiction as Coroner of the county that can be seen within the State. In years gone by, when San Mateo County, while on the map, was not considered entitled to more than passing notice, it was very seldom that the body of a deceased person passing through the Coroner's hands remained unidentified, but to-day, with the bustle and activity surrounding the county, the number of bodies unclaimed by relatives or friends is steadily increasing, as the long line of graves in Union cemetery marked "unknown" will bear mute witness.

It has always been Mr. Crowe's earnest desire and wish that all bodies coming into his hands should be positively identified, and his instructions to his deputies in this respect have been to leave nothing undone which would, in any way, tend to a complete identification of the dead. That those instructions have been faithfully carried out, no one can doubt, as bodies have been brought to the morgue in this city when it seemed a hopeless task to ever establish their identity, yet, in a large number of cases, relatives of the deceased parties have been located and the bodies of the dead given a Christian burial.
The form of the record book will be compiled by Deputy Coroner Claude Fox, after a consultation with Coroner Leland's Chief Deputy P. J. McCormick of San Francisco.
